Partners in Inclusion & Access

THE UNIVERSITY OF ARIZONA

About the Disability Resource Center

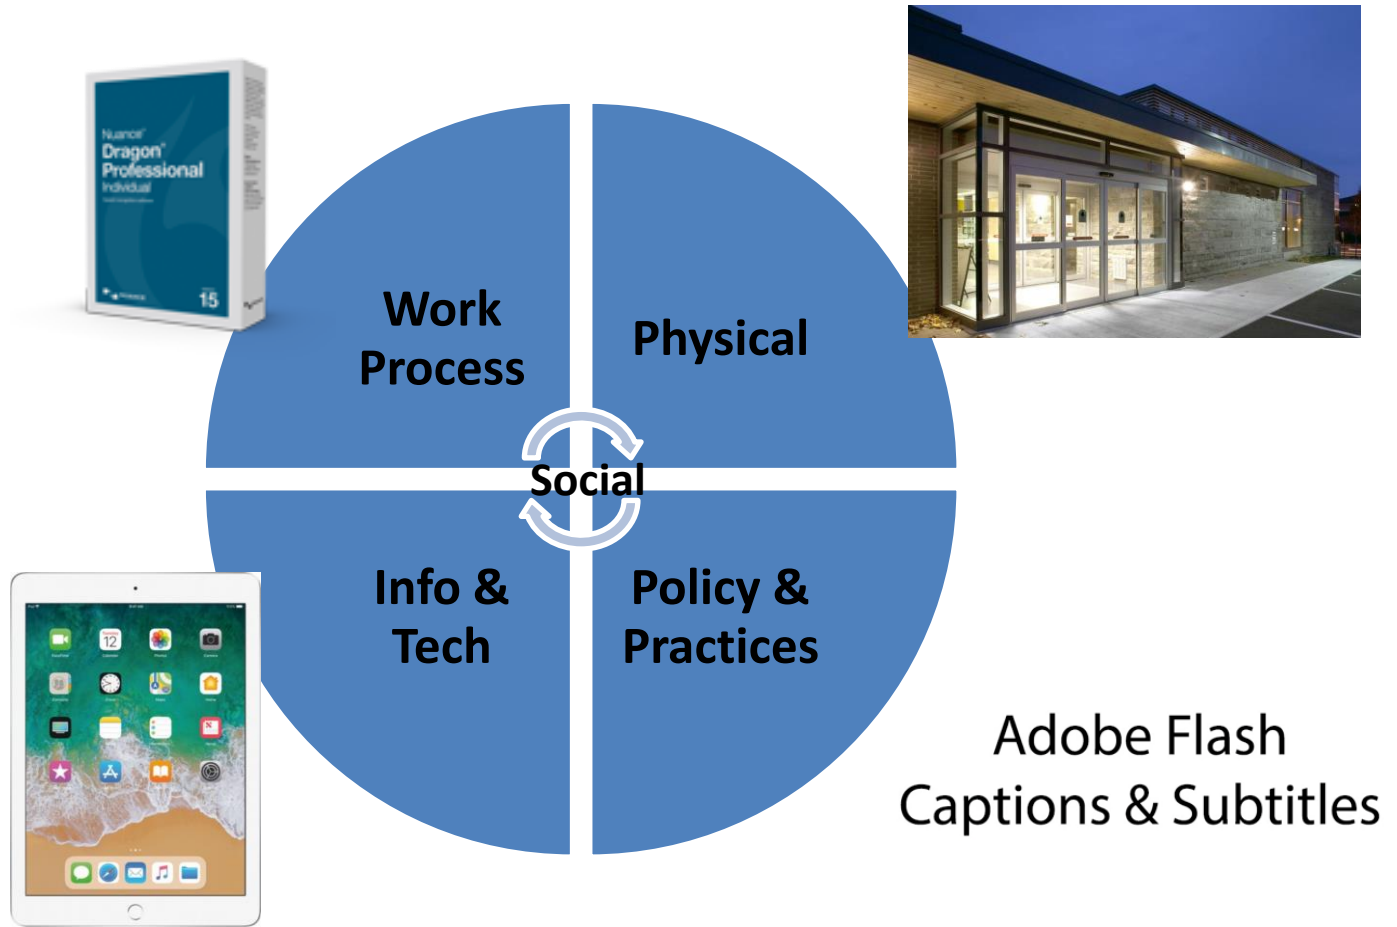

We ensure that UA curricular, workplace, physical, information, technology and policy environments are usable, welcoming and accessible through individual consultation, strategic partnerships and consistent outreach.

The Meaning of Access at UA

- Going beyond the letter of the law
 - what CAN we do!
- Engaging in a conscious process of rethinking the design of environments at the University, to be usable by all individuals, to the greatest extent possible
- Barriers exist in environments, not in the individual
- Ensuring all environments are accessible to everyone

Inclusion and Access to All Environments

Universal Design

The design of products and environments to be usable by all people, to the greatest extent possible, without the need for adaptation or specialized design.

Workplace Access

Consults with employees and supervisors on options for removing barriers to access in the workplace.

- Consults on implementation of Universal Design principles
- Ensures University processes are followed for access and reasonable accommodation.

Facilitate provision of reasonable accommodation.

- Individualized, but based in consistent process

Any change or adjustment to a job, the work environment or the way work is customarily done which permits a qualified applicant or employee with a disability to perform the essential functions.

- Modification or adjustment that enables the enjoyment of equal benefits & privileges of employment
- Can't take privileges /benefits/opportunities away
- Similar to fundamental alterations of course within the academic setting.

Individualized Interactive Process

- Every request and outcome based on the individual, but our process is always consistent.
- This means most of the time we can't take any benefits or privileges away.
- "Trust the process"

Interactive Process Steps

Employee

Resources

Request Form & Medical Provider Form

Eligibility
determination

Impairment substantially limits major life activity

Discuss the request and essential functions with the department

Medical information kept confidential

Possibly work with HR

This is the puzzle that we get to solve!!!

Accommodation
determination

Takes into account not only the employee's role, but HR Policy, possible labor laws and civil rights laws and best practices

Communication

Accommodation Letter that goes to employee, supervisor, chain of command and HR representatives

Who are they required for?

- Qualified applicants
- Qualified employees
- Part-time, full-time, probationary, student employees

Magic Words Aren't Necessary

Plain English is enough.

Doesn't need to be in writing.
Verbal requests can be sufficient.

Employee suggests s/he may need a change to a work environment or practice because of a medical condition, pregnancy or disability.

Refer employee to DRC if this is not a request that you would normally approve as usual department practice.

Accommodation Examples Opportunities for Better Design

General Accessibility/Universal Design

- Ensuring recruiting sites, electronic applications, interview sites, testing sites, etc., are accessible
- Providing employment materials in accessible formats
- Making an employee's workstation accessible
- Ensuring physical work environment are accessible

Modifying or Creating Policies/Practices

Modifying a practice related to working
from home/remotely

Implementing a practice related to fragrances or allergies

ADA Leave

Modified/Flexible Scheduling

- Adjusting arrival or departure times
- Allowing a “window of arrival”
 - Allowing flexible schedule
- Allowing part-time or reduced work schedule
 - Allowing periodic breaks
 - Changing a shift
 - Allowing an employee to use leave

Job Restructuring

Reallocating or redistributing marginal job functions

Altering when and/or how a function, essential or marginal, is performed

Providing temporary modified or light duty

Never have to reallocate essential functions, but can if warranted.

Providing Equipment

- Purchasing, modifying, and designing equipment

Examples:

- Magnifying reading software
- Voice recognition software
- Videophone
- Tablet w/ apps
- Desk chair or adjustable workstation
- Alternative keyboard
- Stand/lean stool/desk
- Amplified headset

My friend needs an ADA Workplace Accommodation. How do they start the process?

The screenshot shows the homepage of the Disability Resource Center (DRC) at the University of Arizona. The browser's address bar displays "https://drc.arizona.edu". The website header includes "THE UNIVERSITY OF ARIZONA" and a search bar. The main navigation menu contains: About, Request Accommodations, Students, Instructors, Workplace, Physical Access, and Athletics. The "Workplace" menu item is highlighted with a red starburst and a red arrow pointing down to it. Below the navigation is a large photograph of the DRC building. A white callout box with a blue background and white text is overlaid on the right side of the building photo. The callout box contains the text: "Disability Resource Center (DRC)" and "DRC ensures disability access for our campus. We work to create a universally designed campus and reduce the need for individual accommodations through proactive collaboration with University partners." A red arrow points up from the bottom of the callout box to the "Workplace" menu item. At the bottom of the page, the word "Announcements" is visible.

Reasonable Workplace Accommodations

What is a reasonable accommodation?

A reasonable accommodation is a change to an application process, work environment, or the way work is customarily performed that enables a disabled or pregnant employee to enjoy equal access. Personal items/devices (e.g., glasses, hearing aids, wheelchairs, etc.) are not considered reasonable accommodations.

Reasonable accommodations are generally centrally funded through the DRC. The DRC does not pay the cost of temporary employees or other staff to perform the essential functions of an employee's position when an employee is temporarily or permanently unable to do so, because this is not considered a reasonable accommodation.

When might an employee need a reasonable accommodation?

The following sample scenarios/statements could be requests for accommodation. If it is part of your department's typical practice to approve certain types of requests (e.g., to work remotely, receive additional leave, or receive light duty), you may approve these types of requests without referring an employee to the DRC. Before denying such a request, the employee should be referred to the DRC for consultation.

- "I have exhausted all of my FML, but my doctor has not released me to return to work. I need an additional month of leave."
- "My doctor has released me to return to work after my shoulder surgery, but I'm unable to lift 20 pounds for the next six weeks."
- "I recently started using hearing aids, but I am still having trouble hearing sometimes when I am using my office phone."

Information for Employees

Interactive Process for Requesting Reasonable Accommodations

The University strives to create an environment that is accessible and inclusive for all employees. The DRC partners with University departments to eliminate barriers to access and promote inclusion. The DRC is also the primary point of contact for disabled and pregnant employees regarding access barriers and requests for reasonable accommodations.

The DRC Workplace Access staff are available to speak with employees who would like information about removing barriers to access in the workplace or requesting reasonable accommodations. In some cases, departments may take the initiative to remove barriers to access so that employees do not have to request accommodations.

If a disabled or pregnant employee decides to request an accommodation, she must submit an Accommodation Request Form (Note: you must be signed into your UA email account to access the Request Form) and may be required to submit a Medical Provider Form. Once submitted, any medical information will be maintained at the DRC and kept confidential.

It is the employee's responsibility to ensure the DRC receives requested documentation. If you do not receive confirmation from the DRC that it has received your documentation within two business days, please call (520) 626-9559 or email workplaceaccess@email.arizona.edu. Once received, any medical information will be maintained at the DRC and kept confidential.

The DRC will make a determination about whether an employee is eligible for accommodations. If an employee is eligible, the DRC will engage in an interactive process to determine if the accommodation request is reasonable. The DRC will consult with the employee, the employee's supervisor, and other individuals as appropriate to gather

ONLINE APPLICATION

Important Messages

The purpose of this form is to assist the Disability Resource Center (DRC) in determining whether, or to what extent, a reasonable accommodation is required for a disabled or pregnant employee with a disability to perform the essential functions of his/her job safely and effectively. This form will be treated confidentially and filed at the DRC. It will be maintained separately from any personnel records.

You should receive an immediate email confirmation from Arizona.DRC@accessiblelearning.com, acknowledging the receipt of your application. Please contact drc-workplaceaccess@email.arizona.edu if you have any questions regarding this process or have not been contacted within 72 hours of submission.

Tips to Remember

- All of us have a role to play in designing inclusive and accessible workplace environments.
- Employees do not have to use the “magic words” when requesting accommodations.
- Supervisors and department heads must not deny an accommodation request before it (and possible alternatives) are thoroughly evaluated by Disability Resources. Denials, if appropriate, will come from Disability Resources.
- If anyone has concerns or questions regarding the intersection of disability and the workplace, they should contact Disability Resources to consult.
